In the May 2013 Inside Politics Newsletter, Bill discusses the political consequences of the Affordable Care Act—more commonly known as ObamaCare. The law has overcome many obstacles already. But the next hazard it will face is the challenge of enrolling young and healthy people. Without those new customers, insurance rolls will be overwhelmed by older and sicker Americans who can't get coverage now—and it will drive up costs. And insurance premiums.

On p. 3, he examines the partisan divide on whether or not the issue of global warming is “exaggerated.” And also takes look at the impact the Senate gun vote had on approval ratings for Senators. The results may surprise you.
