

Ripple Effect

Wesley Whistle

Former Education Policy Advisor

@WesleyWhistle

Nicole Siegel

Senior Education Communications Manager

@NSiegel_DC

Based on federal data, just 57% of students who start two- and four-year colleges graduate. Well, what if rather than accepting these middling completion rates, we made a major push to graduate more students? Our latest video explores answers to these questions and highlights the wide-reaching economic benefits our country could see if we invested in higher education the same way we've invested in our K through 12 system.

TOPICS

HIGHER EDUCATION 353